Second Step Housing hosts Step into Fashion runway show

Vancouver, Washington – July 25, 2011 –

Second Step Housing is getting ready to strut their stuff. On Wednesday, September 7, 2011, Second Step is hosting a fashion show to bring the community together, raise money, and have some fashionable fun.

The Step into Fashion event will include a runway show, silent auction, and dinner. This night of celebrating style will showcase local models from Sports & Lifestyle Unlimited as well as celebrity models Mayor Tim Leavitt and Mayor Mike Ciraulo on the runway. Attire will be provided by Camas boutique Lily Atelier and Ridgefield-based Agave Denim. Park West Studio will provide hair styling.

“For more than 15 years, Second Step has helped women move from homelessness to independence,” said Debby Dover, executive director of Second Step. “We teach our residents a variety of skills they need to really thrive, including how to dress for success. This year’s Step into Fashion event is a natural extension of the service Second Step provides.”

In addition to raising funds for Second Step Housing’s services, two residents will be selected for professional makeovers for the Step into Fashion event. “Looking good helps you feel confident and credible,” said Dover, “and that is just one way that Second Step helps residents of Vancouver.”

Join sponsors Walsh Construction Co. and Fazzolari Custom Homes & Renovations and step out for a night of fashion and fun in Vancouver. Call 360-993-5301 or email events@secondstephousing.org for tickets.
